Our starting point:

- There is that of God in everyone.
- Spiritual awareness is accessible to everyone of any religion or none.
- No one faith can claim to have the final revelation or monopoly of truth.
- A union of hearts between faiths can help prevent misunderstandings.
- We do not seek to 'convert' one another but to share spiritual insights.
- We seek to foster tolerance and mutual understanding between faiths.
- We recognise the direct, unmediated communication between an individual and the creative source of love, light and life.
- We understand the primacy of the Inward Light over Scripture.
- We appreciate peace is a process to engage with one another rather than a goal to be reached.
- We search our hearts and are seekers after Truth.
- We delight in the diversity of faiths and beliefs and warmly welcome Quakers and non-Quakers to join with us.

The humble, meek, merciful, just, pious, and devout souls are everywhere of one religion; and when death has taken off the mask they will know one another, though the divers liveries they wear here makes them strangers.

William Penn, 1693, a Quaker and founder of Pennsylvania.
